APRIL IS SHOWERS & FLOWERS – AND NATIONAL POETRY MONTH

It Could be You, Celebrating Poetry in the Lou at the Greater St. Louis Book Fair

(ST. LOUIS – April 4, 2017): The Greater St. Louis Book Fair is pleased to recognize National Poetry Month, the perfect time to appreciate poetry in the United States and in our region. In preparation for the May 4-7 Book Fair, we've been asking St. Louis notables to share their all-time favorite reads so we can pass them along to the public. Now is the time to get excited about the rhyme!

Aaron Williams is Founder and Champion of the 7th Grade Poetry Foundation, www.7GP.org or @7Thgradepoetry. Committed to improving educational opportunities for young people and honored for poetic contributions, Williams is Chair of the St. Louis Poet Laureate Task Force, which created, funded and selected St. Louis' first Poet Laureate.

"I think any personal top ten list of poetry books changes over time, considering life experiences, the evolution of one's literary taste, and what connects a poem to any reader at any point in time. This list is culled from a lifetime of favorites," said Williams. He offers these for Poetry Month:

1. Collected Poems by Jane Kenyon
2. Mockingbird Wish Me Luck by Charles Bukowski
3. 100 Love Sonnets by Pablo Neruda
4. Collected Poems by Edna St. Vincent Millay (Harper Perennial 2011 edition)
5. The Selected Levis by Larry Levis (Revised Edition, Pitt Poetry Series, edited by David St. John)
6. White Apples and the Taste of Stone: Selected Poems 1946-2006 by Donald Hall
7. The Road not Taken by Robert Frost (published by Henry Holt, 1951)
8. A Trumpet in the Morning by Arthur Brown (River Styx #16 Special Issue)
9. Reflections on a Gift of Watermelon Pickle..and Other Modern Verse compiled by Stephen Dunning and Edward Lueders
